

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT INSTITUTES

AUGUST
12-13
2010

Register Now to Reserve
Your Place in Pueblo, Colorado.

Register On-line at www.paideia.org

Pueblo School for Arts and Sciences

2415 Jones Avenue
Pueblo, Colorado 81004

Two Day Institute
August 12-13, 2010
8:30 am to 4:00 pm

Registration:
$400 through July 15, 2010
$500 after July 15, 2010

Registration Deadline:
August 3, 2010

THE UNIVERSITY of NORTH CAROLINA

INTRODUCTION TO THE PAIDEIA PROJECT

“The desire to construct a tangible product of the highest quality is a powerful motivator for students, especially when that product has both intrinsic value for the students and value to an authentic external audience. Only when they sense the relevance and authenticity of classroom work will most students commit to the very real labor of learning.” (Terry Roberts, NPC)

Would you like to design units of study that make your curriculum relevant for your students?

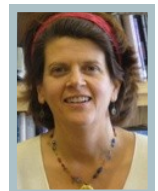

The Paideia Project is a unit of study that leads to a student production or performance of real value to an audience outside the classroom. It is designed specifically to create relevant and rigorous classroom work that connects your curriculum with the larger world in which students live.

Terry Roberts, PhD
Director

Our Introduction to the Paideia Project Institute builds on Paideia Seminar training guiding you through the construction of a three-column Project blueprint. We start with curriculum analysis to generate a map for creating high quality student production and performance. We will also draft a detailed Project timeline and holistic assessment tools.

In short, our goal for this Institute is for you to plan the fundamental “macro components” of a Paideia Project. Ultimately, these plans will serve as the key tools for engaging students in meaningful and collaborative work.

Laura Billings, PhD
Associate Director

The National Paideia Center • 140 Friday Center Drive
Chapel Hill • North Carolina 27517
Phone (919) 962-3128 • Fax (919) 962-3139
www.paideia.org • info@paideia.org